Kranti Jyoti Savitribai Phule's Contribution to Women Empowerment

ABSTRACT

Savitribai Phule brought the dawn of women's education in India. She worked for the rights of women and introduced education opportunities for girls during the British India Age. Her poems raised voice against discrimination and emphasized the importance of education. She was also actively involved in protests against Sati, untouchability, child marriage and other social practices that violated human rights. Navitribui Phule emerged as one of most renowned female reformists in India. She worked for uplitting the explorted lower caste people. She also started a shelter at her house in 1863 for preventing infanticide. She also worked for the welfare of widows. Along with her husband, Savitribar started a movement to introduce the equal rights for men and women. Her devotion has set an example and has inspired many Indian women. Introduction:

Savitribal Phule, the first female teacher of the first avoncel - school in India is a pioneer "figure. She recentle sly fought against the dominant caste system and worked towards the uplifiment of the marginalized She demanded dignity for all women, for which she, along with her husband Isoticao Phale worked their entire lives. The principles of humanity, equality, liberty and and cowere of almost importance to her. During a time when women were more objects, she ignited a spars it a led to equality in education something which was impossible before she strongly spoke against the discriminatory be as ics unposed on women, which led to their oppression. Her emphasis on secular education for sector counts pation in India is the marker of her significant personality By getting to know her batter, by inderstanding her straigles and hardships, we will be looking into a life that not only changed the face of education in India, but also enlightened humanity in its real essence Early Life and Work:

A crusader for women empowerment, Savitribai Phule's contribution in the field of education has left an evergreen mark on India's historical pages. At a time when India was plagued with women's outraged modesty, she acted as a messiah for all those women who were living a life of servitude. Both on January 3, 1831, in Naigaon Maharashtra, Savitribai was married off to activist and social-reformer Jyotirao Phule, at a very young age But with her husband's support and motivation, she learned to read and write. He not, only helped her in attaining good education but also supported her in achieving her dream of an India where women can live with their heads field high. She set up India's first women's school As wah her husband, she also worked towards using female infanticide and set up a home, iva Pratibandhak Griha, to prevent the of widows. She also campaigned against marriage and sati pratha, which undermined costence of women. Rape victims were often cised during those times, but the couple not a helped them in delivering their children but unaght them to begin a new life.

sect of women education;

by Indian women are not behind men in any set. They have proved themselves in each and opfield like education, politics, sports, science, alcol, engineering, government sectors, social pice etc. They made their names in the history indig the hearts of many people because of it education and wisdom. But all these women i'd take education because of the continuous sits of Savitribai Phule who had taken initiative slart women education in India.

er contribution as a poet:

loteed to marry with old age men. After the death of her husband widows were not allowed fo remarry. Their heads were shaven. Savitribåi organized a strike of barbers to persuade them not to shave their heads. Particularly Brahmin women were sexually exploited by males. They were driven to commit suicide. Phule started shelter home in their own house by name Balhatya pratibadhak griha for Brahmin widows. For the awareness they put advertisement at pilgrimage places and all over the city.

Struggles:

Savitribai's struggle was fraught with many difficulties and despite that she continued her work peacefully. Men would purposely wait in the streets and pass lewd remarks. They sometimes pelted stones and threw cow dung or mud. Savitribai would carry two saris when she went to school, changing out of the soiled san once she reached school, which would again be soiled on her way back, and yet, she did not give up. The guard who was then appointed for her, wrote in his memoirs about what she would say to those men. "As 1 do the sacred task of teaching my fellow sisters, the stones or cow dung that you throw scent like flowers to me. May God bless you!"

What we must remember:

Savitribai, along with Mahatma Jyotirao Phule, fought for the rights of women, peasants, Dalits and backward eastes. Both of them bravely faced the abuses burled at them by reactionary and casteist dominant forces. They carried on their straggle for gender equality and fight against caste system in spite of tremendous maltreatment by the Manuwadi and Brahminic forces.

Conclusion:

Savitribai was having unbreakable courage to face orthodox people. Devoted to social welfare. Savitribai, while taking care of patients during the third hubonic plague, herself got the disease and died in 1897. She was first woman to enter into male bastion society. She was not a conventional ouasteric burger conventional Indian devoted wife but she was a bread winner, inspiring teacher, courageous leader, brave social reformer, great thinker and critic writer. Through her thoughts and works she could bring about a complete change in all spheres of women's lives. Savitribai went on to become India's first woman teacher and headmistress. It is her struggle and story that marks the beginning of modern Indian women's public life in India.
